FAQ's about PM Pediatric's telemedicine services

What can be treated with telemedicine?

Many common pediatric illnesses can be treated effectively with telemedicine. These include:

Cough and cold symptoms

Respiratory infections

Flu

Pink eye/conjunctivitis

Stomachache/vomiting/diarrhea

Fever

Skin rashes

Seasonal allergies

Sprains and strains

Who are the pediatric specialists who will treat my child?

Your child will be seen by a pediatrician, pediatric physician assistant or pediatric nurse practitioners. Our PM Pediatrics physicians are board certified in pediatrics and many have multiple subspecialty training and board certifications. All of our PM Pediatrics healthcare professionals are experts in pediatrics and licensed to practice medicine in your state.

How long is the wait to see a clinician?

Connecting you to a pediatric expert only takes a few minutes; in most cases the wait is less than 10 minutes.

How secure is my visit?

PM Pediatrics Anywhere is fully HIPAA compliant and secure. You can be assured that your conversations with the clinician and your records are secure and private.

Will insurance cover my visit?

At the time of the telemedicine visit, Medicaid and TRICARE families will pay their usual copay and deductibles, as they would for an in-person office visit. Families with all other insurance coverage will pay $65 and charges will be submitted to your insurance company. Depending on how your insurance company covers telemedicine visits, you may have additional responsibilities or you may be eligible for a partial refund. Your insurance carrier will make this determination.

How much is a visit if I am not currently covered by insurance?

If your child is not covered by insurance, the $65 you pay at the time of service will be considered payment in full and there will be no further charges.

How will I get a prescription if needed?

Any prescriptions will be e-prescribed to the pharmacy of your choice.

Still taking walk-ins, no need to call ahead, but they will screen you for COVID-19 and will not treat or test you for it

Message from the office:

Out of an abundance of caution, we are taking several measures to ensure the health and safety of our patients and our staff.

All reading materials have been removed from waiting rooms, chairs have been removed or rearranged to ensure appropriate distancing and sick patients are being asked to call before coming into the office so that we may appropriately screen them.

We are also implementing a system where sick patients will wait in their cars and be escorted directly to a room.
